Parenting in 2020—an Evening with Andrew Fuller

Andrew has recently been described as an “interesting mixture of Billy Connolly, Tim Winton and Frasier Crane” and as someone who “puts the heart back into psychology”. As a clinical psychologist, Andrew Fuller works with many schools and communities in Australia and internationally, specialising in the wellbeing of young people and their families. He is a Fellow of the Department of Psychiatry and the Department of Learning and Educational Development at the University of Melbourne. Join Clinical Psychologist and family Therapist Andrew Fuller for an evening on all things parenting in the modern age.

Andrew will discuss how to open a conversation when kids won't talk, how to confidently negotiate the boundaries in your household and lots more.

Walk away equipped with the practical tools and understandings to better support your children in this increasingly complex world.

Andrew is a member of the National Coalition Against Bullying. He has established programs for the promotion of mental health in schools, substance abuse prevention, the reduction of violence and bullying, suicide prevention and assisting homeless young people. Andrew also continues to support young people's mental health in his private practice.
